

Coronavirus: COVID-19 Current Update – December 2, 2022

Public Health Ontario's Weekly COVID-19 Summary

Public Health Ontario (PHO) warns us to interpret these trends with caution because they are not entirely accurate. COVID-19 cases, contacts, and outbreaks are only being managed in high-risk populations and settings. There is also a delay in reporting, especially with severe outcomes and deaths. Recently, experts have said reported case counts are a severe underestimate of the actual extent of COVID-19 infections in Ontario.

This week, the number of reported cases in Ontario was 4,533 compared to 5,179 the week before. The data suggests that COVID-19 is decreasing throughout the province and may remain similar over the next two weeks.

Over the past week, there were 284 hospitalizations and 47 COVID-19-related deaths, which are both lower than the week before.

The total number of ongoing outbreaks in high-risk settings is 225. The number of outbreaks decreased in all settings except for Long-Term Care homes, which increased by three.
