

Coronavirus: COVID-19

Current Update – February 16, 2024

Public Health Ontario’s Weekly COVID-19 Summary

The number of reported COVID-19 cases on Feb 10, 2024 was 1,333. The total number of deaths caused by COVID-19 reported in the week was 15. The total number of covid-19 outbreaks in Ontario during this period were 53. Total number of hospital admissions was 72.

A snapshot of Ontario’s COVID-19 wastewater data shows the rate of infection in the province is dropping after a holiday spike. The presence of COVID-19 in wastewater appears to be shrinking in every region surveyed by Ontario Public Health, with the exception of northwest Ontario where the signal is actually trending upward to 1.28.

Although Ontario no longer tests for or reports on COVID-19 infections as it did during 2020 and 2021, the publicly available data shows other key indicators are trending down as well. Even though the data is “far from perfect”, piecing it all together does help show how prevalent COVID-19 is in the province, especially at a time when testing and reporting is not nearly as widespread as it once was. But when you put all the pieces together, even though the imperfect bits of data, it paints a picture, and that picture is COVID is still here. COVID is still a problem. But we're seeing much less COVID circulating now than what we were during the holiday season.
