Toronto Public Health will be releasing another round of appointments for the updated COVID-19 shot at its fixed-site vaccination clinics on Friday as city officials urge residents to “do the double jab.”

Toronto's Medical Officer of Health Dr. Eileen de Villa told reporters that the city has administered nearly 27,000 COVID-19 and flu shots since Oct. 11.

As part of the city's 'Fight the Flu & COVID-19' vaccination campaign, residents can get both the flu shot and updated COVID-19 vaccine during one appointment at Toronto's four fixed-site vaccination clinics. Appointments opened for all Toronto residents on Oct. 30.

Appointments can be booked at one of the city's four fixed-site vaccination clinics, including Metro Hall, Cloverdale Mall, the North York Civic Centre, and 410 Progress Avenue (near Scarborough Town Centre), through the province's provincial booking system.

Torontonians can also now book both the flu shot and updated COVID-19 vaccine at hundreds of participating pharmacies around the city.
